

M E S S A G E

In any field, without data we face unknown shortcomings. It is the data which helps us for opinions and then to decide. Bureau of Statistics has been compiling statistics for years, which not only assist in future development planning but also offer opportunities to researchers and academia to analyze past data for examining development trends in Balochistan. Based on findings of the past development trends for all or specific sectors forecasting will also be highly desirable by the users of all kind. I present this compilation as a window to development activities in Balochistan.
